"It's time for your haircut," said Mother Sheep.
"I don't want a haircut," said Gus. "I want to play." "All sheep need haircuts," said Mother Sheep.
"You are like my father," said Mother Sheep. "Let me tell you about Grandfather Shrek."
"Come and sit down," said Mother Sheep.
"Grandfather Shrek did not like haircuts. Every time it was his turn, he would run and run. The farmer had to run after him.”

One day Shrek ran away. He did not want any more haircuts.
The farmer looked and looked for Shrek. No one could find him.
Six years later someone looked into the cave.
There was Shrek! But he did not look like Shrek.
Shrek’s wool was so big. It was over his eyes.
He could not run well. He was too big!
Grandfather Shrek got a new haircut.
There was so much wool to make yarn and new clothes.
“That’s a good story,” said Gus. “I’ll get a haircut too, so my wool will make clothes.”
