

Reading Comprehension Program

Within LiteracyPlanet's Comprehension program, students are matched to texts pitched at their instructional level for reading and comprehension. These texts improve comprehension by building each student's vocabulary combined with regular text analysis activities, as well as encouraging the regular practice of deep reading exercises.

Deep reading is also known as slow reading, where the student is engaged in activities that encourage inferential and deductive reasoning, analogical skills, critical analysis, reflection and insight (Wolf & Barzillai, 2009). The ultimate goal of our program is for the student to apply what they learn to reading and writing in real life situations.

What is Reading Comprehension?

When we read a text, our level of understanding is determined by our ability to not only say the word but also comprehend the meaning of the word in context. The ability to decode and pronounce words is what enables us to read, whereas knowing what the words mean in context is essential for understanding what we have read.

Reading comprehension involves the following two processes:

Therefore, reading comprehension is the understanding of the words that are written (Vocabulary Knowledge) along with how they make meaning within the text (Language Comprehension). Both of these skills together are what enable students to comprehend what they are reading.

How LiteracyPlanet develops Reading Comprehension?

To develop vocabulary knowledge, students need activities that will develop their word automaticity. To develop their text comprehension, students need activities that will develop their language comprehension. Practice in word automaticity and language comprehension are what enable students to become proficient readers.

The following key elements - language comprehension and word automaticity - enable students to develop their reading fluency and comprehension.

LANGUAGE COMPREHENSION

Conceptual Knowledge facts, ideas, etc.

Vocabulary Structure
(etymology, morphology, etc.)

Language Structure
semantics, syntax, etc.

Logical Reasoning
inference, analysis, etc.

Contextual Knowledge
genres, print logistics, etc

WORD AUTOMATICITY

Phonological Awareness
(phonemes, syllables, etc.)

Word Recognition
(sight words, new words, etc.)

Decoding Skills (use of letter-sound correspondence rules, etc.)

LiteracyPlanet's Reading Comprehension program develops every skill that is essential for Reading Fluency and Comprehension

Reading List

Our Reading Comprehension program begins in Kindergarten and continues through Year 10, providing students with texts that are both instructional and rewarding.

The following tables outlines the title of each text and how the text is organised within our program (i.e. the text's text type and genre). Each text is taught in a "mission" and includes a set of questions to evaluate understanding of the text.

The following list will continue to grow as more titles become available.

LiteracyPlanet's Comprehension Strategies

Comprehension strategies are techniques students use to make sense of a text. These techniques encourage students to pay attention to details, find hidden meanings and look for the big picture. They also improve thinking, logic and creativity.

LiteracyPlanet's Comprehension activities develop comprehension ability by helping students become purposeful, active readers who think deeply about the text. Each activity includes several comprehension strategies that develop thinking and analysis skills.

The following pages provide a useful guide for teachers targeting the development of comprehension skills. They include each text in the program and the associated comprehension strategies.
